No. 1 Court Room to Be Transferred From Village Building

CLERK, SHERIFF
CHANGE QUARTERS

Equipment and Records to Be Transferred Next
Saturday

LISBON, Feb. 23.—Three additional county offices will be re-located in the courthouse late next week, it was officially announced here today. Next Friday morning, county trucks will transport equipment for No. 1 common pleas court from the present location in the Lisbon Village building to the new court room.

Records and other equipment in the office of Clerk of Courts T. Vaughan Yates will also be moved next Friday and Saturday, while equipment in the temporary office of Sheriff Frank Ballantine will be transferred from the village guild-

Time Needed to Move

Little, if any, work will be done by the forces in the offices of Clerk Yates and Sheriff Ballantine in their present location. Several days will be required to properly arrange the mass of office records.

Workmen today completed the cleaning of No. 1 court room, and now the new woodwork shines brightly, and the floor is spotless. Revolving chairs formerly used in the jury box in No. 2 court room have been cleaned and these will be placed in the jury box in No. 1 court room.

The private office of Judge W. F. Lones is finished, also the conference room for attorneys and their clients and likewise the No. 1 court jury room.

All carpenter work has been finished in No. 2 court room and adjacent offices, and as funds are provided, painters will start work.

It is also expected that the law library will be removed to the third floor in the new building within two weeks, or as soon as lighting equipment is installed.

$2,155 Paid In Labor

LISBON, Feb. 23.—Only $2,155 had been paid out in labor costs on the courthouse FERA project up to last Thursday evening, it was announced here today. Although the state relief offices at Columbus appropriated over $25,000 for FERA activities in the works division for Columbiana county, this amount was to be distributed over five projects.

A skeleton force is being employed at the courthouse project, and the small force will be continued according to the budget hours until the March appropriation is announced.

Kindness To Dogs Saves Ohioan From Pen Electrocution

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Feb. 23.—Because John Hans twice spent his last cent to buy dog biscuits for stray dogs he faced life imprisonment instead of death today.

Charged with the murder of Howell Jones of Bellaire last November, he pleaded guilty through his counsel when brought to trial here. Prosecutor Paul Wadell refused to ask the death penalty.

"Any man who spends his last penny on dog biscuits during the depression is mentally unsound," he told the court.

Common Pleas Judge Harry Tyler gave Hans a life sentence.

REGULATION OF POTATO OUTPUT WINS APPROVAL

200 Growers Like Idea, as Outlined at Winter
Meeting Here

BUT MORE DATA
WILL BE SOUGHT

"Spud" Would Be Made
Basic Commodity Subject to Allotment

Potato growers from Columbiana, Mahoning and several adjoining counties, holding their annual winter meeting Friday in the Methodist church basement, voiced wholehearted approval of the proposed federal law for the regulation of the potato industry.

The bi-county growers' association took no formal action, however. Floyd Lower, county extension agent who presided over the meeting, said that "it is too early for any definite action in regards to the federal proposition. Farmers are seeking further enlightenment on the plan."

Would Be Basic Crop

The potato, under the federal plan, would be listed as a basic crop, it was explained, subject to allotment of crop acreage along with other basic commodities under the AAA.

Both morning and afternoon sessions were observed at the meeting yesterday. Before adjourning the farmers voted unanimously to meet again next winter.

Attendance at the morning session Friday was listed at approximately 175 while the afternoon session attracted 200. The session was sponsored by the extension service and Mr. Lower, who announced that association meetings will be held later.

Speakers beside Mr. Lower included: E. B. Tussing, potato specialist from Ohio State university; W. E. Stough of Mansfield, prominent Ohio potato grower and chairman of the State Potato Marketing committee; and Rolland Weingart, manager of the local district. Ladies of the church served lunch at noon.

Discusses Market Trends

Mr. Tussing spoke at the morning session concerning the "Trends and Changes in Potato Marketing," while Mr. Stough, who is to attend another federal meeting in Washington soon, reported on the proposed national potato regulation plans.

Rolland Weingart concluded the morning program with a talk concerning cooperative marketing of spuds this year. A discussion followed.

Following a talk by Mr. Tussing in the afternoon on "Harvesting and Storage Methods to Improve Quality," Mr. Stough again took the floor to lead an explanation and discussion on production methods.

A business forum concluded the day's activities. It was announced that the board of directors of the Columbiana-Mahoning association will meet March 4 at Columbiana. On March 6, a meeting of the vegetable growers group will be held at the same place.

County Will Seek Reservoir System

LISBON, O., Feb. 23.—County commissioners in a proposed public improvement budget submitted to the state relief administration at Columbus, have proposed the expenditure of $8,424.98 for the construction of a reservoir and water conservation system on the McKinley farm recently purchased for a permanent Boy Scout camp.

Last year it was suggested that the waters in Beaver creek flowing through this farm land be conserved, and immediately afterwards plans were prepared by the FERA works division here for the construction of several dams. County commissioners now urge the completion of this proposal.

YOUTH SEEKING G. O. P. CONTROL

Young "Rebels" Organize
to Seize, if Possible,
Party Leadership

By CHARLES B. SAPP,
Associated Press Staff Writer
CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—With a revolt of young Republicans from present party leadership thrust into the open by a speech at Kansas City of their national committee chairman, George O. M'Clintock, Des Moines, a plan for seizing control was disclosed today.

Lester Lusby of Chicago, regional director of young Republicans, said that he had approved the idea, said it was the out-cropping of a desire to "revolt" and "legislate for ourselves once in a while." Others vigorously denied that a "revolt" was contemplated.

No leader of the movement would permit his name to be used, but the various ideas privately expressed, summed down to this:

One hundred carefully chosen members would be picked to meet either in a "rump" Democratic caucus or in smaller groups to discuss legislation. They would outline a schedule, consider pending bills, accept the recommendations of their own group, and agree to vote as a unit. All would have to make a strict secrecy pledge, agreeing not to disclose their plans.

A Patronage Lever
Numerous ideas were in the mind of the members. One said it could be used to make "the administration see light" on patronage.

Another said that the 100—with sufficient support from Republicans—could force amendments in bills which they did not like.

A third said the 100 could see that "the national forests and parks get a square deal and a little more of this money that is being thrown around."

A fourth insisted that as he saw it the group's primary purpose

REVOLT MAPPED BY DEMOCRATS

Dissatisfied Members of Party Plan to Form
"Secret 100"

By CLARENCE M. WRIGHT,
Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Creation of a secret organization of 100 Democratic members, in an attempt to consolidate "dissatisfied" groups into a cohesive voting unit, was under way today in the house.

The exact plan of strategy had not been mapped, because the movement was still in its formative stage.

Some who had approved the idea, said it was the out-cropping of a desire to "revolt" and "legislate for ourselves once in a while." Others vigorously denied that a "revolt" was contemplated.

ICY HIGHWAYS SLOW TRAFFIC; ACCIDENTS FEW

Snowfall of Six Inches or More Is Measured at Disposal Plant

Salem motorists and pedestrians "kidded on a blanket of snow today."

The heaviest snow of the year was believed to have fallen in Salem and vicinity as measurements at the city disposal plant recorded a depth of approximately six inches. It was still snowing lightly this morning.

Ashes on Highways

Rain and sleet formed a thick crust over the heavy flakes, making traveling treacherous. The state highway patrol reported many trucks stalled on surrounding highways. The county and state highway departments have sprinkled ashes on the hills.

Salem motorists who ventured out with their cars gyrated over the roads, many of them skidding into ditches.

One garage man reported that he had answered between 35 and 40 calls for assistance in getting automobiles back onto roads, out of drifts and even away from curbs where the rain and snow acted like glue.

The temperature was only slightly below freezing. Telephone lines were reported out of order in some areas.

Two Men Die

The rain and snow caused the deaths of two men in Ohio.

John Jackson, 63, a night watchman at Monroeville, died in a hospital at Cleveland. He was found lying in a street at Norwalk with his leg, hip and collarbone broken, and covered with snow.

James O. Loar, died of a heart attack at Toledo as he attempted to get his auto out of a drift.

Ruth at Bat!

"THE LADY DANCES" by MARGE STANLEY

CHAPTER XXX

Shene and Hong were leaning on the door together. Shene nodded as he entered, removing an odoriferous pipe from his mouth.

"Leaving tomorrow?" he said. "Yes," answered Mark shortly. "We're sorry to lose Vanya," said Shene, with a yellow-toothed smirk. "We'll be sorry to lose her," he repeated.

Something in Mark resented Shene's use of the girl's name.

"She'll be happier in the States," he said.

"Doubtless—doubtless!" rumbled Shene. "This is a hard life for a girl."

Mark passed on, and mounted the stairs. Vanya's door was closed; he rapped softly on the panel, and entered at her low reply.

She was sitting on the bed, engaged in her interminable mending; she looked up gravely as Mark entered. Without a word, his mood of romance still upon him, he stepped to her side, leaned over her, and kissed her. Her arms stole about his shoulders; she held him tightly to her for a moment.

"Dear Mark!" she said very softly as she released him, and he stood erect. It was then that he noticed what garment she had been mending—the loose crimson blouse that was a part of her dancing costume.

"Vanya!" he said. "Why bother to mend that? You'll have no more use for it here."

"A ship comes in tomorrow," she said, still gazing at him with serious eyes. "I shall have to dance."

"No, honey! whether you've promised or not, about the dancing, you won't have to dance here tomorrow night. You've forgotten that the mail packet sails day after tomorrow. Tomorrow we go to Taulanga; I've ordered a prau here to take us."

"I haven't forgotten the mail packet, Mark."

"Then why bother mending that? We'll be gone before evening."

"We won't, said Vanya. I'm going to dance tomorrow."

"I tell you you'll be gone!"

"You will, Mark. I can't go through with it."

"Go through with it! Vanya, what do you mean?"

"Mark bargain," she said gravely. "Mark I can't do it! I'm not going!"

Departure Day

"She won't get away with it!" muttered Mark, finally giving up the attempt to sleep as dawn lightened his windows. He swung out of the rumpled bed and set about the routine of dressing.

Vanya hadn't yielded. Endless arguments of the preceding night had left both sides exhausted, but Vanya had won. She wouldn't even answer questions save to reiterate that she couldn't go. Yes, she hated the Cove, but she couldn't go. Yes, she wanted to enter the States, but her end of the bargain was off. And indeed yes, she still loved Mark—but she couldn't go. And that was all.

"She's bluffing!" raged Mark as he laced his boots. "She wants to bargain, and it's unworthy of her. She wants—I suppose—marriage!"

He slipped into the empty hall, where the daylight dimmed the pale oil-lamp, and at Vanya's door ventured a faint rap.

"Won't wake her if she's asleep," he thought.

(Published in Salem (O.) News Feb. 16, 23, March 2, 1935.)

But her voice came instantly. "Mark?"

"Yes," he said, shaking his head. "Her muffled footsteps sounded, a key—his own latchkey, twisted creakily, and Vanya peeped out wrapped in her flowered robe. She looked out at him questioningly. Her features betrayed as sleepless a night as Mark's had been; her dark eyes were heavy, and a tinge of red colored the lids, as if from weeping.

"What is it?" she whispered. "Let me come in."

She opened the door a trifle wider; Mark entered and she closed and re-locked it. She dropped to the edge of the rumpled bed, and Mark sat on the chair surveying her. For all that she looked tired, sleepless, weary, he thought her intensely beautiful.

"What's the matter?" she repeated. "Oh, Mark, you haven't come to renew that useless heart-breaking argument of last night!"

"No," he said, shaking his head. "I give up trying to sleep, and I wanted a walk to—help clear things up in my mind, and as I passed your door, I thought you might be awake. I knocked lightly, not to disturb you if you were sleeping."

"I was awake," she said. "I couldn't sleep either."

"This is what I came to say," Mark said still in a low, almost whispering tone. "I'm going to leave you alone today—all day I'm going on a long walk, or I'll hobnob with Loring—at any rate, I'll not be near you. And I want you to think this over, carefully, and finally, The prau should be here by the middle of the afternoon; I'll return then for your final answer."

"There's no need, Mark. I can't change what I've said. I can't go through with it!"

"But you'll do what I ask?" he murmured. "You'll think it over?"

"Of course. Could I help thinking of it? Do you believe it means so little to me that I could forget it?"

"And then, Vanya, it wouldn't be an unholy bargain?"

"No—not then! But I'll think of it, if that will satisfy you, though I can tell you now that the answer will be the same."

"I promised not to argue, dear, but—"

"But you promised not to argue," cut in the girl. "Please, Mark, don't let's get into another bitter quarrel. It can't help matters, and I—I simply can't stand another battle."

"Then I'll leave you," said Mark. "until this afternoon."

He kissed her gently, and stepped quietly into the empty corridor; he tiptoed down the creaking stairs. Below, the bar-room was deserted; even Hong, who never seemed absent from his post, was invisible now. The sunlight slanted across the tables, bringing out in curious shades the dust that had settled on them since the visit of the men of the Caroline. The room, for all its open windows, had a musty, abandoned smell.

Mark opened the chest behind the bar; nothing to eat was there save several clustered bunches of bananas. Lacking ice, of course, breadfruit spoiled too quickly to warrant keeping, but he had hoped for a pineapple. He tore four of the brown bananas from their cluster, and slipped them into a paper bag from the bar; they'd do for breakfast and lunch, should his walk prove lengthy enough for two meals. He stepped from the door of the Diver's Helmet into the blinding sunlight of full tropical day. The gulls were gathering on the beach; their raucous squawks sounded familiarly pleasant to him. He had heard the sound on the land after island for many months. The surface of the cove itself was almost glassy in its calm, but beyond the point, out in the open Pacific, small rollers flashed in the morning light. Behind him, the green hills of Tongatabu, with their mystery glowing emerald; he turned and glanced up at them toward the village where he and Loring had watched the dance of the virgins. There was, of course, no visible sign of that settlement; nothing but lush jungle stretched from the edge of the clearing to the top of the highest visible hill. Loring was sprawled on his side beneath his tree, apparently asleep; save for his presence the clearing was as deserted as the bar-room.

AMERICA'S OLDEST SKYSCRAPER

The oldest building in U. S., located on Case Grande National Reservation, Arizona, has a new asbestos and cement transite roof to protect it from ravages of time, thanks to PWA. Archaeologists date it five centuries before Columbus' first voyage to America. When a now vanished tribe of Amerindians constructed the eleven-room, four-story dwelling it ranked in skyscraper class.

Mark had just quitted, and nearly as quiet. He walked quietly across the clearing, past the unstraining beach-comber, and along the broad white sand that he and Vanya had followed before, on the walk they had taken together. He passed the great fallen tree they had clambered over, and he passed far beyond the coral outcroppings on which they had rested, and where Vanya had confessed to Mark that she loved him. Where now was that love of hers, he wondered. Had he killed it? Small blame to Vanya if she had ceased to care, or if she had never really cared! He had been at fault, grievously at fault, throughout the whole miserable affair; yet, after all could he have acted differently? Mark knew well enough that he couldn't have; he had done only what his training, his ideals, his morality, had made it inevitable for him to do. He couldn't have offered marriage to Vanya, not with the stern social code of half a dozen generations denying him the privilege. Not even loving her as he now realized he did.

So he tramped along the deserted beach, far beyond the place where he and Vanya had turned back. He passed a pineapple grower's establishment; natives were abroad in the fields, moving among the palm-like spikes of the plants. Each worker, as Mark passed, turned and stared silently at him for a long minute or more; strangers, he reflected, were doubtless rare beings along that coast, especially strangers trudging alone along the beach. And the sun rose inexorably in the sky; when it was nearly at the zenith, he paused, threw himself on the sand, and consumed his warm and very soft bananas.

He sat for a while thinking. He thought of Loring, mysterious, clever, ineffectual, and of Hong and Shene, whom Loring hated, but for the most part he thought of Vanya. He thought of her at first as she had looked in the crimson blouse and black velvet shorts in which she danced. A wave of longing swept over him at the picture he evoked of her slim, graceful body. He closed his eyes, and he deliberately turned his mind from that image he found so dangerous; he allured. He forced himself to consider Vanya's inexplicable revision and her refusal to uphold her end of the bargain. His mood of longing changed gradually to a slow feeling of indignation.

"She wants marriage," he thought, "and that I can't in honor give. Black sheep or not I'm still a Talbot!"

He glanced at the sun, it was already, he thought, a bare hair's breadth past the zenith; he had to be leaving. He rose, crumpled the empty paper bag into a ball, and tossed it into the backwash of a Pacific comb. He watched it drift for a moment, and then set his face on the return route.

Somewhere the return seemed quicker; some excitement or expectation within him made his footsteps much hastier than on the first half of his long walk.

"Vanya's to me like magnet to steel," he told himself. "I leave her slowly and with effort, but I bound back with such celerity that it surprises even myself."

He passed the pineapple plantations, the coral outcroppings, the mighty fallen tree, and the curve of the Cove lay before him. He rounded the bend of the shore; a vessel lay at anchor in the tiny harbor, a great schooner-rigged ship with men busy about the deck.

Loring, peeling a bread-fruit, was watching idly; he looked up at Mark's approach.

"There she lies!" he said. "The Kermadec, with her crew itching to enrich Pearly Shene."

"Just in?" said Mark. "There's no one ashore, from the look of the tender."

"She's been in an hour, at least. Horsten's not the man to give his crew shore leave until they've put in a full day's work. Not a man ashore until well after dark, unless he's changed his nature. He'll keep them swabbing decks and polishing brass, whether it's needed or not, until mess time. He's a hard man to sail under."

"Shene must love him for that!"

"Shene doesn't care. What money the crew has will be his anyway before they sail. But look—there's your transportation!"

Mark turned. The native craft was just rounding the point toward the beach.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

MANY AND interesting are the letters that come to this department. We want to talk about one letter that arrived recently, for it deals with a thought that must be in the minds of many women.

In substance it is this: Why should I entertain when I know that I can't do things as they should be done, when I know that I can never set a table like the model luncheon, dinner and buffet tables shown in the shops? And we hasten to make answer.

Why should you set a table like those shown in the shops? Why don't you use what is in your home? For what use are guests that come merely because the home is beautiful and the food and potables of the times?

Entertaining in House

Yes, my friend, there is every reason why you should entertain in your own home. For the art of entertaining is not one that needs money. It is an art and it might be a pleasant surprise to learn how ingenious you are, how friends will enjoy your hospitality though it be of the simplest. And you should study the tables in the store displays for they will give you ideas.

Where the centerpiece is of elaborate silver and the candlesticks of crystal, you can use the same idea, taking a plain pottery bowl for your centerpiece, filling it with flowers and using your ordinary candlesticks and setting in them candles that harmonize with the flowers.

Use China and Silver

Surely you have some china and silver. Well, use it for your buffet table, augmenting it with simple china from the popular price stores. It is the simplest thing in the world to set a nice buffet table. Your letter says that you have a nice little dining room. Well, use it as the buffet. Put up your card tables in the living room and on the porch. Borrow some if necessary. Use paper cloths and paper napkins. No one expects elaborate formality at a buffet. That is why it is the very best way to entertain.

Learn to entertain and you will be astonished to see what clever ideas you will have for offering nice food without much outlay.

IF EVER a mother does envy her daughter it is when she sees how easy it is for daughter to keep her home beautifully clean with a minimum of effort. For one thing, heavy, ponderous pieces of furniture are fast going out of fashion. Gone is not only the formal dining room but the massive sideboard and other pieces that grace that

CHAPTER XXX

Shene and Hong were leaning on the bar together. Shene nodded as he entered, removing an odorous pipe from his mouth.

"Leaving tomorrow?" he said.

"Yes," answered Mark shortly.

"We're sorry to lose Vanya," said Shene, with a yellow-toothed smirk. "We'll be sorry to lose her," he repeated.

Something in Mark resented Shene's use of the girl's name.

"She'll be happier in the States," he said.

"Doubtless—doubtless," rumbled Shene. "This is a hard life for a girl."

Mark passed on, and mounted the stairs. Vanya's door was closed; he rapped softly on the panel, and entered at her low reply.

She was sitting on the bed, engaged in her interminable mending; she looked up gravely as Mark entered. Without a word, his mood of romance still upon him, he stepped to her side, leaned over her, and kissed her. Her arms stole about his shoulders; she held him tightly to her for a moment.

"Dear Mark!" she said very softly as he released him, and he stood erect. It was then that he noticed what garment she had been mending—the loose crimson blouse that was a part of her dancing costume.

"Vanya!" he said. "Why bother to mend that? You'll have no more use for it here."

"A ship comes in tomorrow," she said, still gazing at him with serious eyes. "I shall have to dance."

"No, honey! whether you've promised or not, about the dancing, you won't have to dance here tomorrow night. You've forgotten that the mail packet sails day after tomorrow. Tomorrow we go to Taulanga; I've ordered a prau here to take us."

"I haven't forgotten the mail packet, Mark."

"Then why bother mending that? We'll be gone before evening."

"We won't, said Vanya. I'm going to dance tomorrow."

"I tell you we'll be gone!"

"You will, Mark. I can't go through with it."

"Go through with it! Vanya, what do you mean?"

"I mean bargain," she said gravely. "Mark, I can't do it! I'm not going!"

Departure Day

"She won't get away with it!" muttered Mark, finally giving up the attempt to sleep as dawn lightened his windows. He swung out of the rumpled bed and set about the routine of dressing.

Vanya hadn't yielded. Endless arguments of the preceding night had left both sides exhausted, but Vanya had won. She wouldn't even answer questions, save to reiterate that she couldn't go. Yes, she hated the Cove, but she couldn't go. Yes, she wanted to enter the States, but her end of the bargain was off. And indeed yes, she still loved Mark—but she couldn't go. And that was all.

"She's bluffing!" raged Mark as he laced his boots. "She wants to bargain, and it's unworthy of her. She wants—I suppose—marriage!"

He slipped into the empty hall, where the daylight dimmed, the pale oil-lamp, and at Vanya's door ventured a faint rap.

"Won't wake her if she's asleep," he thought.

Case No. 33779.

The State of Ohio, Columbiana County, ss.

Notice is hereby given that Mike Solomon has been appointed administrator of the estate of Anna Solomon, deceased.

H. W. HAMMOND, Probate Judge.

GEO. E. LOUCAS, Attorney.

LEGAL NOTICE

S. H. Squire, State Superintendent of Banks in charge of the liquidation of The Citizens Savings Bank of Salem, Ohio, plaintiff, vs. Louise Brown et al, defendants. Case No. 25654.

Verna Hutchison and A. M. Hutchison, whose last known address was 1046 West Douglas Avenue, Freeport, Illinois, will take notice that on the 11th day of February, 1935, the undersigned S. H. Squire, State Superintendent of Banks in charge of the liquidation of The Citizens Savings Bank of Salem, Ohio, filed his petition in the Court of Common Pleas of Columbiana County, Ohio, in Case No. 25654, alleging that the defendants above named have or claim to have an interest in the following described real estate, to-wit:

Situated in the City of Salem, County of Columbiana, and State of Ohio.

Known as being Lot No. 5 in Martha Street's First addition of lots to the City of Salem, Ohio, as the same appears on the recorded plot of said additions. And being the same premises conveyed to Jonathan Hale by deed of Effie I. Hutson and Lester Hutson, her husband, dated October 20th, 1904, recorded in Volume 246, Page 35, Columbiana County Deed Records.

Further known as Deed No. 212, West Seventh St., Salem, Ohio.

The petition further alleges that by reason of the default of the defendant, obligor, in the payment of a promissory note according to its terms, the conditions of a concurrent mortgage deed given to secure the payment of said note and conveying the premises above described, have been broken and the same has become absolute.

The prayer of the petition is for the foreclosure of plaintiff's mortgage, for the marshalling of liens and the sale of said premises and the proceeds applied to the payment of said liens in the proper order of their priority.

Defendants named are required to answer and set forth their respective interests in said premises or to be forever barred from asserting the same, and for such other and further relief as is just and equitable.

The defendants above named are required to answer on or before the 15th day of April, A. D. 1935.

S. H. SQUIRE, in charge of the liquidation of The Citizens Savings Bank, Salem, Ohio, By H. W. CAMPBELL, Special Counsel.

(Published in Salem (O.) News Feb. 16, 23, March 2, 1935.)

But her voice came instantly. "Mark?"

"Yes."

Her muffled footsteps sounded, a key—his own latchkey, twisted creakily, and Vanya peeped out wrapped in her flowered robe. She looked out at him questioningly. Her features betrayed as sleepless a night as Mark's had been; her dark eyes were heavy, and a tinge of red colored the lids, as if from weeping.

"What is it?" she whispered.

"Let me come in."

She opened the door a trifle wider; Mark entered and she closed and re-locked it. She dropped to the edge of the rumpled bed, and Mark sat on the chair surveying her. For all that she looked tired, sleepless, weary, he thought her intensely beautiful.

"What's the matter?" she repeated. "Oh, Mark, you haven't come to renew that useless heart-breaking argument of last night!"

"No," he said, shaking his head. "I give up trying to sleep, and I wanted a walk to—to help clear things up in my mind, and as I passed your door, I thought you might be awake. I knocked lightly, not to disturb you if you were sleeping."

"I was awake," she said. "I couldn't sleep either."

"This is what I came to say," Mark said still in a low, almost whispering tone. "I'm going to leave you alone today—all day I'm going on a long walk, or I'll hobnob with Loring—at any rate, I'll not be near you. And I want you to think this over, carefully and finally. The prau should be here by the middle of the afternoon; I'll return then for your final answer."

"There's no need, Mark. I can't change what I've said. I can't go through with it!"

"But you'll do what I ask?" he murmured. "You'll think it over?"

"Of course. Could I help thinking of it? Do you believe it means so little to me that I could forget it?"

"No, I don't think that, Vanya. I think you want something more of me—something I can't give."

"I suppose you're right," said the girl dully. "I suppose you can't give what I want—the only thing that would make this unholy bargain possible to me!"

"And then, Vanya, it wouldn't be an unholy bargain?"

"No—not then! But I'll think of it, if that will satisfy you, though I can tell you now that the answer will be the same."

"I promised not to argue, dear, but—"

"But you promised not to argue," cut in the girl. "Please, Mark, don't let's get into another bitter quarrel. It can't help matters, and I—I simply can't stand another battle."

"Then I'll leave you," said Mark. "until this afternoon."

He kissed her gently, and stepped quietly into the empty corridor; he tiptoed down the creaking stairs. Below, the bar-room was deserted. Ever since the Cove, never seemed absent from his post, was invisible now. The sunlight slanted across the tables, bringing out in curious shades the dust that had settled on them since the visit of the men of the Caroline. The room, for all its open windows, had a musty, abandoned smell.

Mark opened the chest behind the bar; nothing to eat was there save several clustered bunches of bananas. Lacking ice, of course, breadfruit, spoiled too quickly to warrant keeping, but he had hoped for a pineapple. He tore four of the brown bananas from their cluster, and slipped them into a paper bag from the bar; they'd go for breakfast and lunch, should his walk prove lengthy enough for two meals. He stepped from the door of the Diver's Helmet into the blinding sunlight of full tropical day. The gulls were gathering on the beach; their raucous squawks sounded familiarly pleasant to him—he had heard the sound on Island after island for many months. The surface of the cove itself was almost glassy in its calm, but beyond the point, out in the open Pacific, small rollers flashed in the morning light. Behind him, the green hills of Tongatabu, with their mystery-glowed emerald, he turned and glanced up at them toward the village where he and Loring had watched the dance of the virgins. There was, of course, no visible sign of that settlement; nothing but lush jungle stretched from the edge of the clearing to the top of the highest visible hill.

Loring was sprawled on his side beneath his tree, apparently asleep; save for his presence the clearing was as deserted as the bar-room.

Mark had just quitted, and nearly as quiet.

He walked quietly across the clearing, past the unstriking beach-comber, and along the broad white sand that he and Vanya had followed before, on the walk they had taken together. He passed the great fallen tree they had clambered over, and he passed far beyond the coral outcropping on which they had rested, and where Vanya had confessed to Mark that she loved him.

Where now was that love of hers, he wondered. Had he killed it? Small blame to Vanya if she had ceased to care, or if she had never really cared! He had been at fault, grievously at fault, throughout the whole miserable affair; yet, after all, could he have acted differently? Mark knew well enough that he couldn't have; he had done only what his training, his ideals, his morality, had made it inevitable for him to do. He couldn't have offered marriage to Vanya, not with the stern social code of half a dozen generations denying him the privilege. Not even loving her as he now realized he did.

So he tramped along the deserted beach, far beyond the place where he and Vanya had turned back. He passed a pineapple grower's establishment; natives were abroad in the fields, moving among the palm-like spikes of the plants. Somewhat the return seemed quicker; some excitement or expectation within him made his footsteps much hastier than on the first half of his long walk.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

MANY AND interesting are the letters that come to this department. We want to talk about one letter that arrived recently, for it deals with a thought that must be in the minds of many women.

In substance it is this: Why should I entertain when I know that I can't do things as they should be done, when I know that I can never set a table like the model luncheon, dinner and buffet tables shown in the shops?

And we hasten to make answer. Why should you set a table like those shown in the shops? Why don't you use what is in your home? For what use are guests that come merely because the home is beautiful and the food and potables of the finest?

Entertaining In House

Yes, my friend, there is every reason why you should entertain in your own home. For the art of entertaining is not one that needs money. It is an art and it might be quicker, some excitement or expectation within him made his footsteps much hastier than on the first half of his long walk.

"Vanya's to me like magnet to steel," he told himself. "I leave her slowly and with effort, but I bound back with such celerity that it surprises even myself."

He passed the pineapple plantations, the coral outcropping, the mighty fallen tree, and the curve of the Cove lay before him. He rounded the bend of the shore; a vessel lay at anchor in the tiny harbor, a great schooner-rigged ship with men busy about the deck.

Loring, peeling a bread-fruit, was watching idly; he looked up at Mark's approach.

"There she lies!" he said. "The Kermadec, with her crew itching to enrich Pearly Shene."

"Just in?" said Mark. "There's no one ashore, from the look of the tender."

"She's been in an hour, at least. Horsten's not the man to give his crew shore leave until they've put in a full day's work. Not a man ashore until well after dark, unless he's changed his nature. He'll keep them swabbing decks and polishing brass, whether it's needed or not, until mess time. He's a hard man to sail under."

"Shene must love him for that!"

"Shene doesn't care. What money the crew has will be his anyway before they sail. But look—there's your transportation!"

Mark turned. The native craft was just rounding the point toward the beach.

AMERICA'S OLDEST SKYSCRAPER

The oldest building in U. S., located on Case Grande National Reservation, Arizona, has a new asbestos and cement transite roof to protect it from ravages of time, thanks to PWA. Archaeologists date it five centuries before Columbus' first voyage to America. When a now vanished tribe of Amerindians constructed the eleven-room, four-story dwelling it ranked in skyscraper class.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeanette Young Norton

WE HAVE so many requests for desserts that owe their unique flavoring to the addition of a few drops of rum that we are offering these today to our many readers in those states where rum is legally allowed. There are so many of us who do not care to take alcoholic beverages but who enjoy dishes made with a few drops of sherry or brandy. And so we feel that, in addition to those who inquired for the recipes, there will be others who will want to make a rum flavored frosting and sauce guaranteed to add zest to puddings and sauces.

The next time you have guests for dinner, serve them a layer cake with macaroon frosting or a fruit pudding with butterscotch rum sauce and see if you don't receive plaudits as a sophisticated hostess. It is these little touches that lift a simple dinner out of the ordinary and make it an occasion to be enjoyed and remembered. And remember that even if you don't wish to use real alcohol, the shops are now selling delicious rum or brandy or sherry extracts made for cooking purposes.

Macaroon Frosting: For rum macaroon frosting, thoroughly blend half cup sweetened condensed milk and two tablespoons butter. Add one cup confectioners' sugar, the 4K kind, and beat till smooth and creamy. Fold in nine almond macaroons made into three-quarters of a cup of crumbs. Add one teaspoon rum or the same amount rum extract for cooking purposes. Spread on cold cake. This makes enough to cover top and sides of a loaf cake or tops of two eight-inch layers.

Butterscotch rum sauce: calls for one can of sweetened condensed milk to be caramelized. To do this place the can, unopened in a kettle of boiling water and keep at boiling point for three hours. Be sure to see that the cans are kept covered by the water. Chill before using.

Lemon Salad Recipe: Here's a recipe for a hearty luncheon salad. Combine half cup lemon pulp and juice, two cups shredded lettuce, half cup celery, two cups flaked tuna, salmon or shell fish and three tablespoons minced pimento. Serve this combination with a splendid lemon mayonnaise. Stir one slightly beaten egg yolk, half teaspoon salt and one tablespoon lemon juice until well mixed. Beat in salad oil, slow at first, until one-fourth cup is added. Then add oil more rapidly. When dressing becomes thick add another tablespoon lemon juice and oil, using in all two cups of salad oil. The salad is fish salad Californian.

For a sharper thinner dressing, add two extra tablespoons lemon juice just before serving. For fruit salad dressing, thin with third as much orange juice.

HOW TO provide that necessary daily fresh fruit or vegetable salad when the market supplies are so scarce is a difficult problem each winter. Even in the southland var-

Services In Our Churches

HOLY TRINITY ENGLISH LUTHERAN

East State st. at Woodland ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor. Services on Sunday, 9:45 a. m. Sunday school 9:45 (Acts 3:1-10). Lewis Hirst, Supt.

The longing for well bodies is very natural. It may seem to be the only possession that is worth anything. Health is very important. Jesus so considered it and bestowed healing grace upon many infirm and diseased. Material wealth is greatly desired by many. Questionable methods are used to obtain it. Sacrifice of life and morals are accepted to get wealth. There are more treasured possessions than gold and silver. They cannot buy happiness. They cannot in every case assure long life and health. They cannot be used to buy one's way to heaven. "We are saved by faith, not by works lest any man should boast." There can no greater riches come to any person than the possession of a saving faith in Jesus Christ, our blessed Lord.

Morning worship 11. Sermon: "The Teacher Divine." The desire to know is an inborn trait of man. We hesitate to be numbered among the ignorant and the unlearned. The striving for knowledge is that which is carried on even in face of sacrifice and severe cost. There is spiritual knowledge that seems to avoid the most intensive search of man. The perceiving and trying mind of men is often repulsed when an unholy attempt is made to invade the sacred precincts of God. Jesus is the great Teacher. The high and lowly must come to Him for the final knowledge about the world that is hid from man. Jesus has made plain, difficult and ponderous religious problems. He is the Teacher Divine.

EMMANUEL AMERICAN LUTHERAN

291 E. Broadway. Rev. John Bauman, pastor. Frank Hoprich, Sunday school supt.

Some Difference. Voltaire, the Great Unbeliever of France, once said: "I hate life and I hate to die." Such was the hopeless view of this earth-wise man upon two of our gravest and greatest problems—life and death.

Christ's greatest preacher, St. Paul said: "To me to live is Christ, to die is gain." When the Great Master, God's Son is made the well-spring of our living, then life indeed is worth living and has holy and high purpose; death is no grim terror, but the actual coming into that perfect peace and boundless power won for those who firmly and fully believe in the sin-purging, life giving and death-destrorying sacrifice made by the God-Man on Calvary Cross.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The hearing ear, and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them." (Prov. 20:12).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The indestructible faculties of Spirit exist without the conditions of matter and also without the false beliefs of a so-called material existence." (p. 162).

Ohio Wesleyan Takes Buckeye Title, Defeats Cincinnati U., 33-21

Battling Bishops Retain Title Which They Won Last Season; Bearcats Could Have Tied Wesleyan by Winning Last Night's Game

Ohio Wesleyan sported the undisputed basketball championship of the Buckeye Athletic Association today. The "Battling Bishops" defeated Cincinnati University 33 to 21 last night to retain the title they won last year. By winning, Cincinnati could have tied Wesleyan. Austing, Cincinnati's sharp-shooting center, scored 12 points, the high mark for the evening, but Wesleyan finished with the second team on the floor.

The Wesleyan defense consisted largely in keeping Cincinnati marksmen out in mid-floor. The game gave Wesleyan a perfect record of victories in the association this season.

Muskingum, Ohio conference leaders, added a 35 to 22 victory over Kent State, to its list. After a close first half, Muskingum took a long lead and clung to it.

Dayton joined the university of Toledo 32 to 26, and brought to an end Toledo's hopes for the Ohio conference title. Dayton was ahead all the way.

Tourney Finals At Columbiana

New Waterford, Columbiana Win Games Last Night

Special to The News
COLUMBIANA, Feb. 23.—Throughout Ohio last night Class B basketball teams held initial tournament play. Here in Columbiana four teams swung into action. New Waterford and Columbiana emerging the victors.

The two teams will battle for final honors tonight while the losing teams of last night, Salsineville and Fairfield, will battle for the consolation prize.

Three baskets by Tullis in the last five minutes of play gave New Waterford the decision over Salsineville, 21 to 20, after Salsineville had led all the way. The Waterford quintet came from behind just in time to tie the score, 12-12 at the half.

Columbiana had little trouble in defeating Fairfield, 35 to 19. At the half the Columbians held a 19 to 8 advantage. Coach Wland's second team was sent in for most of the game.

Undeclared for most of the season, Defiance college lost to Bluffton last week. Last night at Van Wert the Defiance record was blotted again by Griffin, 39 to 38. Akron, Griffin center, scored the deciding point in the last 45 seconds with a free throw.

Ashland, after slumping badly early in the game, finally defeated Findlay college 49 to 36.

Miami university traveled to Huntington, W. Va., to meet Marshall college and found going very rough, losing 31 to 23.

In Cleveland, Case won an overtime game from John Carroll, 39 to 35. The regular playing time ended with the score 35-31. Williams of Case made a free throw for the deciding point.

Romans Defeat Warren Easily

Salem's Leaguers Down Visitors Friday Night, 43-27

The Salem Romansians had little trouble defeating the Warren Romans here Friday night at the Memorial building in a league game, 43 to 27, as Cosma, with 15 points and Nedelka with 11, set a fast pace.

Salem led 22-10 at intermission and at the end of the third period held a 35 to 18 advantage. The end of the league season finds Salem and Canton fighting for championship honors. A probable two out of three-game slate will be played soon.

Bucks To Face Purdue Tonight

Ohio State Seeks Revenge on Boilermaker Cagers

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23.—Hopelessly out of the Big Ten championship race, the Ohio State university basketball team will make every effort tonight to tangle its ancient foe, Purdue, from the lofty perch at the top of the ladder.

The first meeting of the Bucks and Boilermakers at Lafayette was a queer affair a few weeks ago. Ohio took a commanding lead during the first half and lacked only one point of having the score doubled at half time, 31 to 16. Purdue came back strong in the second period and tumbled the Bucks, 42 to 41.

Next Saturday night the Bucks will close their season with Michigan here. Ohio won the first encounter at Ann Arbor earlier in the season by a three point margin, 33 to 30.

Referees Share In Mat Groaning

Marshall and Brown Fail To Realize Own Strength

BY A. E. LYONS,
International News Service
Sports Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 22.—Wrestlers must not get rough when plying their trade in Kansas City. That is, not too rough. And it would be well for them to develop a sense of direction, and distance when tossing persons into the area reserved for spectators.

Everett Marshall, of La Junta, Colo., just a boy at heart who doesn't know his own strength, "forgot" himself—as is like as not to happen—during a grappling session with one Orville Brown, from Wallace, Kan.

Everything was going along nicely until the pair lost each other in the ringside smoke. Marshall peering through the haze saw what he thought was Brown and lunged forward with head down determined to butt the said Brown into submission.

The effort was a direct hit and the crash echoed above the roar of the crowd. Something that sounded like "oomph!" escaped from the object as it went hurtling through the ropes enroute to the customers.

"Well, that's that," mused Marshall, slip-slapping the palms of his hands together a few times to indicate he was through for the evening. But as he prepared to leave the ring his exit was halted. He found a pair of strong arms clamped about his thick neck. They were Brown's strong arms.

"Hey!" exclaimed the surprised Marshall, "I thought I put you out."

"Nope," said Brown, fashioning a headlock on Marshall. "They tell me it was the referee."

"Well, all right," reluctantly agreed the puzzled Marshall, as he hoisted Brown for an airplane spin. "But I'd have sworn it was you."

"Honest it wasn't—it was the ref."

Brown's words were cut short by completion of the airplane spin—the spinee reaching the mat in the orthodox manner. But there was something between Brown and the canvas. Investigation disclosed the inert form of Referee No. 2.

The fans crowded about the ring and taunted Marshall.

Tommy Atkins, who had tossed Chris Devora earlier in the program, finished the officiating and awarded the match to Marshall—which should have been an easy way out. But Marshall, still taunted by the crowd, turned on Atkins. Devora and Karl Davis, another grappler, went to Atkins' aid. Marshall tossed both from the ring. A free-for-all fight with everybody welcome ensued.

Police fought their way into the ring and dragged the raging Marshall therefrom for a speedy trip to the hospital on a charge of disturbing the peace. He was fined $50.

Five Games On Big Ten Slate

Wisconsin Trailing Close Behind Leading Purdue Cagers

By WILLIAM WEEKES,
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Purdue, the leader, tackles Ohio State, and Wisconsin, the logical candidate to overhaul the Boilermakers if anyone does, meets Michigan in the feature offerings of a five-game western conference basketball program tonight.

The Badgers, trailing Purdue by only half a game, appear certain of making it two straight over Michigan, leaving the Boilermakers with the absolute necessity of conquering Ohio State. Purdue defeated Ohio by one point in their first meeting at Lafayette, and doesn't figure to find the Buckeyes any easier on the Columbus floor. Purdue has seven victories and one setback, to seven and two for Wisconsin.

Indiana, tied with Illinois for third place at five victories and three defeats, meets Northwestern at Bloomington and looks like a winner. The Illini will get a thorough workout, and perhaps a beating, from the big Gophers at Minneapolis.

Iowa and Chicago meet at Chicago in a contest of no championship significance, but one highly important to the combatants.

The battle for individual scoring honors will be resumed. Bill Haarlow, Chicago's ace, will attempt to add to his 112 points at the expense of the Iowa defense. His on-coming rival, Bob Kessler, of Purdue, probably will be fed plenty of shots at Columbus.

Equipose Is Favored To Take Santa Anita At Los Angeles Today

Great Horse Draws Post Position and Has Chance to Become Leading Money Winner of All Time, Breaking Record

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN, Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—Equipose, like a statue in fine bronze, stood against the western horizon today at the cross roads of a great turf career, only the Santa Anita handicap mile and a quarter short of becoming the leading money winner of all time.

If the veteran son of Pennant can finish in front in the field of 21, as he is favored to do, his total earnings will skyrocket past the present milestone of $376,744 set up by Sun Beau.

It will be one of the most severe tests of a long and brilliant competitive term in which this star of the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney stables has finished out of the money only seven times.

More than 50,000 persons were expected to jam Santa Anita park for a glimpse of one of the finest thoroughbred fields ever assembled. It was probable the Whitney horse would go to the post an odds on favorite. In the face of such opponents as Twenty Grand, Ladysman, Mate and Head Play, all old rivals and Time Supply, Azucar, Gusto, Top Row, Fleam and Fairness. The horses were expected to go to the post around 7:30 p. m. Ohio time.

Out of the 21 listed in the overnight entries, Ladysman was most liked. Equipose present earnings total $334,110.

William R. Coe's 5-year-old was liked for several reasons. Ladysman beat the Whitney charger in the suburban handicap a year ago. He has trained well here, perhaps better than has Equipose. His impost was 13 pounds less than Ekky's top weight of 130, and he is younger.

Twenty Grand, Good, with sensational Silvio Coucel up, also held a fine chance, coming as he has out of almost three years retirement. Time Supply, winner of the Naraganzett and Bay Meadows handicaps, had much backing.

Azucar, the revamped steeplechase expert, and Gusto also were in for much consideration, not to mention roguish Head Play, a handsome thoroughbred, which experts feel can win if that is his mood.

Equipose was fortunate in the draw for a post position. Twentieth position will be his this afternoon, the spot from which he works best. From here Jockey Raymond (Sonny) Workman can keep him out of early trouble and perhaps bring him home from back in the rush to win. Ekky was not the only horse with a chance to pass Sun Beau's mark. Mate, A. C. Bostwick's nominee, has collected $297,660 in cash and the first place money certain to be better than $100,000, could move into the coveted position.

But Mate's training here has not been impressive, and it seemed that his chance of topping such an impressive field were remote.

Salem Seeking 15th Cage Win

Meets Niles McKinley for Semi-Final Here Tonight

Few scholastic teams in Ohio can claim records such as Coach Herb Brown's Quaker tossers have set this season, taking 14 out of 16 games, and tying two more encounters yet to be staged.

One of those will be played tonight on the Salem High court, with Niles McKinley High as the invading quint. Niles only Thursday night lost to the Canton Bulldogs, 43 to 28. The Brownsmen, however, will be on their toes tonight for the Men of the Nile employ a bothersome zone defense.

Salem, too, has another record at stake tonight—that of being undefeated in home play. The Quakers' final scheduled game of the season will be played here next Friday against Struthers.

Ohio Wesleyan Takes Buckeye Title, Defeats Cincinnati U., 33-21

Battling Bishops Retain Title Which They Won Last Season; Bearcats Could Have Tied Wesleyan by Winning Last Night's Game

Ohio Wesleyan sported the undisputed basketball championship of the Buckeye Athletic Association today. The "Battling Bishops" defeated Cincinnati University 33 to 21 last night to retain the title they won last year. By winning, Cincinnati could have tied Wesleyan. Austing, Cincinnati's sharp-shooting center, scored 12 points, the high mark for the evening, but Wesleyan finished with the second team on the floor. The Wesleyan defense consisted largely in keeping Cincinnati marksmen out in mid-floor. The game gave Wesleyan a perfect record of victories in the association this season. Muskingum, Ohio conference leaders, added a 35 to 22 victory over Kent State, to its list. After a close first half, Muskingum took a long lead and clung to it. Dayton joined the university of Toledo 32 to 26, and brought to an end Toledo's hopes for the Ohio conference title. Dayton was ahead all the way.

Tourney Finals At Columbiana

New Waterford, Columbiana Win Games Last Night

Special to The News. COLUMBIANA, Feb. 23. — Throughout Ohio last night Class B basketball teams held initial tournament play. Here in Columbiana four teams swung into action. New Waterford and Columbiana emerging the victors. The two teams will battle for final honors tonight while the losing teams of last night, Salsineville and Fairfield, will battle for the consolation prize. Three baskets by Tullis in the last five minutes of play gave New Waterford the decision over Salsineville, 21 to 20, after Salsineville had led all the way. The Waterford quintet came from behind just in time to tie the score, 12-12 at the half. Columbiana had little trouble in defeating Fairfield, 35 to 19. At the half the Columbians held a 19 to 8 advantage. Coach Wland's second team was sent in for most of the game.

Undeclared for most of the season, Defiance college lost to Bluffton last week. Last night at Van Wert the Defiance record was blotted again by Giffin, 39 to 38. Ackom, Giffin center, scored the deciding point in the last 45 seconds with a free throw.

Ashland, after slumping badly early in the game, finally defeated Findlay college 49 to 36. Miami university traveled to Huntington, W. Va., to meet Marshall college and found going very rough, losing 31 to 23.

In Cleveland, Case won an overtime game from John Carroll, 36 to 35. The regular playing time ended with the score 35-all. Williams of Case made a free throw for the deciding point.

Romans Defeat Warren Easily

Salem's Leaguers Down Visitors Friday Night, 43-27

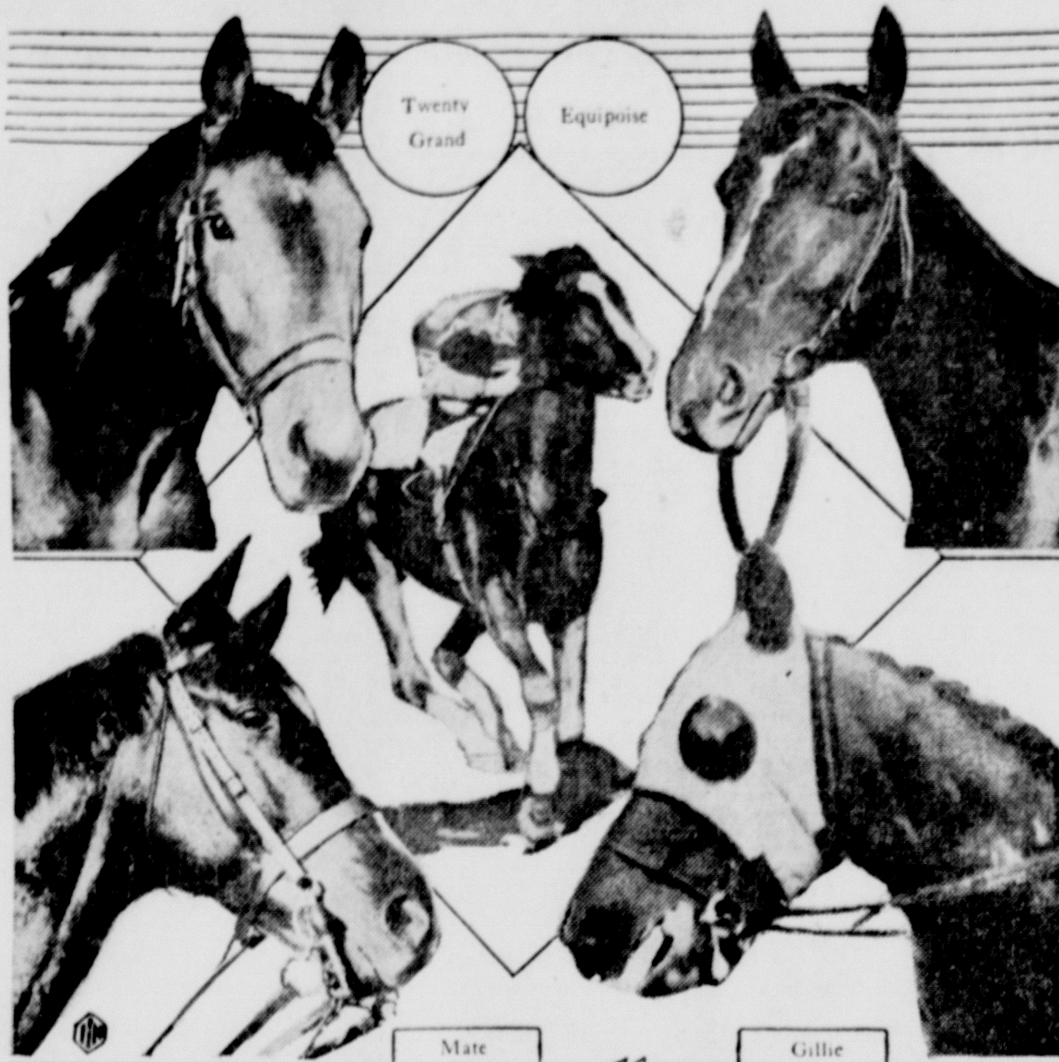

The Salem Romanians had little trouble defeating the Warren Romans here Friday night at the Memorial building in a league fray, 43 to 27, as Cosma, with 15 points and Nedelka with 11, set a fast pace. Salem led 22-10 at intermission and at the end of the third period held a 35 to 18 advantage. The end of the league season finds Salem and Canton fighting for championship honors. #### Bucks To Face Purdue Tonight

Ohio State Seeks Revenge on Boilermaker Cagers

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23.—Hopelessly out of the Big Ten championship race, the Ohio State university basketball team will make every effort tonight to tangle its ancient foe, Purdue, from the lofty perch at the top of the ladder. The first meeting of the Bucks and Boilermakers at Lafayette was a queer affair a few weeks ago. Ohio took a commanding lead during the first half and lacked only one point of having the score doubled at half time, 31 to 16. Purdue came back strong in the second period and tumbled the Bucks, 43 to 44. Next Saturday night the Bucks will close their season with Michigan here. Ohio won the first encounter at Ann Arbor earlier in the season by a three point margin, 33 to 30.

Marshall and Brown Fail To Realize Own Strength

BY A. E. LYONS, International News Service Sports Writer. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 22. — Wrestlers must not get rough when plying their trade in Kansas City—that is not too rough. And it would be well for them to develop a sense of direction, and distance when tossing persons into the area reserved for spectators. Everett Marshall, of La Junta, Colo., just a boy at heart who doesn't know his own strength, "forgot" himself—as is like as not to happen—during a grappling session with one Orville Brown, from Wallace, Kan. Everything was going along nicely until the pair lost each other in the ringside smoke. Marshall peering through the haze saw what he thought was Brown and lunged forward with head down determined to butt the said Brown into submission. The effort was a direct hit and the crash echoed above the roar of the crowd. Something that sounded like "oomph!" escaped from the object as it went hurtling through the ropes enroute to the customers. "Well, that's that," mused Marshall, slip-slapping the palms of his hands together a few times to indicate he was through for the evening. But as he prepared to leave the ring his exit was halted. He found a pair of strong arms clamped about his thick neck. They were Brown's strong arms. "Hey!" exclaimed the surprised Marshall, "I thought I put you out."

Five Games On Big Ten Slate

Wisconsin Trailing Close Behind Leading Purdue Cagers

BY WILLIAM WEEKES, Associated Press Sports Writer. CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Purdue, the leader, tackles Ohio State, and Wisconsin, the logical candidate to overhaul the Boilermakers if anyone does, meets Michigan in the feature offerings of a five-game western conference basketball program tonight. The Badgers, trailing Purdue by only half a game, appear certain of making it two straight over Michigan, leaving the Boilermakers with the absolute necessity of conquering Ohio State. Purdue defeated Ohio by one point in their first meeting at Lafayette, and doesn't figure to find the Buckeyes any easier on the Columbus floor. Purdue has seven victories and one setback, to seven and two for Wisconsin. Indiana, tied with Illinois for third place at five victories and three defeats, meets Northwestern at Bloomington and looks like a winner. The Illini will get a thorough workout, and perhaps a beating, from the big Gophers at Minneapolis. Iowa and Chicago meet at Chicago in a contest of no championship significance, but one highly important to the combatants. The battle for individual scoring honors will be resumed. Bill Haarlows, Chicago's ace, will attempt to add to his 112 points at the expense of the Iowa defense. His on-coming rival, Bob Kessler, of Purdue, probably will be fed plenty of shots at Columbus.

In another chapter of a series of home and home engagements, the Grate Fords and the Cities Service tenpin artists of Youngstown will collide on the Masonic temple alleys here at 7 p. m. Monday. The Youngstown aggregation boasts a flashy collection of bowlers who thus far have held a slight edge over the Fords.

Equipose Is Favored To Take Santa Anita At Los Angeles Today

Great Horse Draws Post Position and Has Chance to Become Leading Money Winner of All Time, Breaking Record

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN, Associated Press Sports Writer. LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22.—Equipose, like a statue in fine bronze, stood against the western horizon today at the cross roads of a great turf career, only the Santa Anita handicap mile and a quarter short of becoming the leading money winner of all time. If the veteran son of Pennant can finish in front in the field of 21, as he is favored to do, his total earnings will skyrocket past the present milestone of $376,744 set up by Sun Beau. It will be one of the most severe tests of a long and brilliant competitive term in which this star of the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney stables has finished out of the money only seven times. More than 30,000 persons were expected to jam Santa Anita park for a glimpse of one of the finest thoroughbred fields ever assembled. It was probable the Whitney horse would go to the post an odds on favorite. In the face of such opponents as Twenty Grand, Ladysman, Mate and Head Play, all old rivals and Time Supply, Azucar, Gusto, Top Row, Fleam and Fairno. The horses were expected to go to the post around 7:30 p. m. Ohio time. Out of the 21 listed in the overnight entries, Ladysman was most liked. Equipose present earnings total $334,110.

William R. Cox's 5-year-old was liked for several reasons. Ladysman beat the Whitney charger in the suburban handicap a year ago. He has trained well here, perhaps better than has Equipose. His impost was 13 pounds less than Ekky's top weight of 130, and he is younger.

Twenty Grand Good. Twenty Grand, with sensational Silvio Coucci up, also held a fine chance, coming as he has out of almost three years retirement. Time Supply, winner of the Naraganzett and Bay Meadows handicaps, had much backing.

Azucar, the revamped steeplechase expert, and Gusto also were in for much consideration, not to mention rogues Head Play, a handsome thoroughbred, which experts feel can win if that is his mood.

Equipose was fortunate in the draw for a post position. Twentieth position will be his this afternoon, the spot from which he works best. From here Jockey Raymond (Sonny) Workman can keep him out of early trouble and perhaps bring him home from back in the rush to win. Ekky was not the only horse with a chance to pass Sun Beau's mark. Mate, A. C. Bostwick's nominee, has collected $297,660 in cash and the first place money certain to be better than $100,000, could move into the coveted position. But Mate's training here has not been impressive and it seemed that his chance of topping such an impressive field were remote.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Led by corn the grain market underwent material downturns early today. Corn at Buenos Aires was reported as 47 cents a bushel lower than Chicago May, with a record big Argentine corn crop in prospect. Opening 45-1/2 down, May 84 1/2-85 1/2, the Chicago corn market soon sagged further. Wheat started 1/4-1/2, 67 1/2, May 95 1/2-96, and subsequently declined more.

General selling of corn future deliveries included much that appeared to be of a stop loss character. Bears in corn put special emphasis on talk of likelihood that all kinds of feeds would be imported by millions of bushels. Statements were also stressed that the corn market has had too many bulls and now finds buying power unusually limited.

Rallies from early downturns in wheat lifted prices for that cereal at times to well above Thursday's finish. Oats took their cue from wheat rather than from corn.

Young "Rebels" Organize to Seize, if Possible, Party Leadership committee, by then under Henry P. Fletcher, its present chairman, called a meeting of the young Republican national committee and inquired as to its policies.

Ten States Represented
With Cincinnati as temporary chairman the executive committee of the young Republicans national committee met in St. Louis last month.

Ten states—Washington, Utah, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Ohio, New York, New Jersey and Alabama—were represented.

The policy report conceived was: "We recommend the rehabilitation of the Republican party through the elimination of selfish, predatory, reactionary interests; the organization of the citizenry who believe in a liberal philosophy of government by laws and not men; maintenance of the economic system which preserves the rights of the individual, and the honest profit motive in agriculture and industry, but fulfills its social obligations, the promulgation of a program of national recovery through re-employment in private industry and the elimination of public funds resulting in an ever increasing burden of public debt; the return to constitutional government as between the individual, state and nation, to the end that free institutions and individual opportunity may be preserved."

The committee decided, Luby said, upon no issues or platform, feeling that those were subjects not to be hurriedly attacked and that the proper platform would form naturally in the ensuing year.

"Clive Of India," At State Sunday, Begins Week Of Excellent Pictures

STATE theater patrons will be offered a treat in theater programs this week, for an unusually fine array of films is scheduled. The week begins with the showing of that very splendid picture, "Clive Of India" co-starring Ronald Colman and Loretta Young.

Colman—Young Star
The film that brings together the lovers in "Building Drummond Street Back" will be at the State Sunday and Monday. With the stars is a fine supporting cast including Colin Clive, Francis Lister, C. Aubrey Smith, Montague Love, Lumsden Hare, Ian Wolfe and Leo G. Carroll. It is a Darryl F. Zanuck production and was directed by Richard Boleslawski, author of the book "Way Of The Lancer."

"Clive Of India" is considered one of the most beautiful and powerful love stories ever brought to the screen. It was a grand book and it succeeds in being as great a success as a film. It is the story of Robert Clive, a poor young clerk in the East India company, who conquered an Empire at 26 years of age and became England's greatest hero, only to see his star fall when the woman he has worshiped drift from him. It is more than a love story, it is a reflection of a life of truly heroic proportions, of star-gazing achievement, attained because a man believed in his own destiny.

Anna Sten's Film
"Clive Of India" was written by two Englishmen, W. P. Lipscomb and R. J. Minney. Their stage play ran over a year in London, although it depicted all those deeds for which Clive was attacked in his day, proves its great appeal. An excellent double bill is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday. The first feature is "We Live Again," the filmization of Leo Tolstoy's immortal novel, "Resurrection," co-starring Anna Sten and Fredric March. This is the first appearance of Miss Sten in Salem. The Soviet Russian actress has appeared in "Nana" and is considered one of Hollywood's greatest "finds" in years. Rouben Mamoulian directed. The second film is a comedy with Ted Healy, Leo Carillo and Louise Fazenda and is entitled "The Whirlin' Ticket."

More Good Films
Thursday the State shows another late production and starting two more great stars. It is "Bordertown" and co-stars Paul Muni and Bette Davis. The cast includes Margaret Lindsay, Eugene Pallette, Robert Barrat, Henry O'Neill, Carel Gordon and Hobart Cavanaugh. The week concludes with "Devil Dogs In The Air," successor to the hilarious comedy "Here Comes The Navy" that also provided many a thrill. Now comes the later film and even more replete with exciting air adventures and with the same comedy trio—Jimmy Cagney, Pat O'Brien and Frank McHugh—three Irishmen who battle it out with one another in some of the goofiest scenes one can imagine.

The Grand shows "When A Man A Man" a Harold Bel Wright story next Saturday and Sunday. George O'Brien and Dorothy Wilson are co-starred.
